

“The anomaly of sustainability in corporate governance and corporate reporting”

Prof. Lela Mélon

Universitat Pompeu Fabra Barcelona

While a few short years ago the debate on whether corporate social and environmental sustainability should be required, and even more so if it should be required through legal regulation of corporate governance, was vivid, this debate seems to have become irrelevant to a certain extent in the light of recent EU legislative changes in the field of corporate law. The lecture seeks to explore the question if regulating sustainability through corporate law is an anomaly or rather a rectification of shortcomings of the previous anatomy of corporate law.
