The two-day Conference Movement of People - A Comparative Conference on Migration will be held at Universität Hamburg and is the first initiative of our University regarding legal discussions on Migration and Refugee Law under European, North-American and Latin American panoramas.

The Conference is targeted at lawyers, jurists, researchers, students, and political as well as social scientists, who are all interested in judicial perspectives on migration and work directly or indirectly in this field.

The Conference will be divided into two main panels, in which academics and experts from all around the world will discuss Refugee and Migration Law issues in an interdisciplinary way and supply a broader perspective of the so-called global migration crisis.
